AMERICA'S FIRST AERIAL VICTORY VIVIDLY RECOUNTED BY ITS HERO

Lieutenant Winslow Writes in His Diary Graphic Story Describing His Exploit and That of Lieutenant Campbell—Given to Public by War Department Because of Its Historical Value.

Washington, D. C.—The story of the first victory over a German airplane by an American aviator is told by the American victor himself, Lieut. Alan F. Winslow, Signal Reserve corps of Chicago, in notes from his diary, which were made public by the war department. Written with no thought of publication, and merely for the purpose of preserving his own impressions, Lieutenant Winslow nevertheless has produced a document which the war department regards as of great historical value and which impresses the reader by its descriptive power. Here is his story:

"On Sunday morning, April 14, I was 'on alert' from 6 a. m. till 10 a. m., that is, I, with Lieut. Douglas Campbell of Harvard and California (since designated as the first American 'ace') were on emergency call duty. We were sitting in the little alert tent playing cards, waiting for a call. Our machines were outside, ready at a moment's notice. I was patrol leader. At 8:35 I was called to the phone, told by the information officer, who is in direct touch with all batteries and observation posts, that two German airplanes were about 2,
